Wayne County Community College District's Michigan Institute for Public Safety Education (MIPSE) Provided Incident Command System Training

Wayne County Community College District's Michigan Institute for Public Safety Education (MIPSE) and the County of Wayne, Department of Public Health partnered in providing Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and the Incident Command System (ICS) courses. WCCCD and Department of Public Health employees along with other emergency services agencies participated in various ICS courses. These courses provided a standardized, on-scene, all-hazards incident management approach that:

- Allowed for the integration of facilities, equipment, personnel, procedures, and communications operating within a common organizational structure.
- Enabled a coordinated response among various jurisdictions and functional agencies, both public and private.
- Established common processes for planning and managing resources.
