Needs Assessment

First step in Workforce Program Development

Workforce Development is committed to personal and professional development through high quality innovative programs that address the learning needs of business, industry, and the community at large. As the demand for developing a trained workforce increases, we seek out opportunities to address those needs. Our first step in the employer engagement process is to focus on a needs assessment for a specific job or skill set including identifying:

- What are the current skill gaps?
- What are the challenges faced by current applicants?
- What is the existing training programs or customize?
- What job opportunities are available for a trained workforce?

The School of Continuing Education and Workforce Development utilizes the answers to these questions to begin developing a program.

Workforce Development Hotline

The 1-800 Workforce Hotline continues to provide the community and industry with information and resources available through various WCCCD's workforce initiatives. The three most common inquiries received during the month of June were in the areas of:

1. Workforce Training Available
2. Allied Health Programs
3. Financial Aid
